Meeting the challenges of Agriculture and Forestry with Commissioner Bob Odom

A three-month investigation by the Department of Agriculture and Forestry has resulted in the recent arrest of a Ringgold Elementary School teacher in Bienville Parish on two felony timber theft charges, Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom said.

According to reports from Forestry Enforcement Supervisor Jim Baldwin, Danny Weaver, 44, of 219 Weaver Road, Castor, was arrested Jan. 15 at the Bienville Parish Sheriff's Office on two counts of felony timber theft involving the property of an elderly, absentee landowner. At the time of his arrest, Weaver told investigators he had been teaching in Bienville Parish for 10 years.

This is the third time Weaver has been arrested in the last year on 4 separate charges of alleged timber theft.

"It appears to be another case of someone taking advantage of a landowner who lives quite a distance from her property," Odom noted. "Because the landowner was elderly and living out of state, she became easy prey for someone trying to make a fast buck."

In 1996, Weaver allegedly cut 65 acres of timber south of Castor owned by an 81-year-old woman residing in Wesson, Miss. He presented her an invoice showing only 11 loads of pine pulpwood, four loads of hardwood pulpwood and one load of pine saw logs had been removed from the property.

"On Jan. 17, 1996, Mr. Weaver drove to Wesson, Mississippi, and gave the owner a statement showing that a total of 16 loads of timber was all that was taken from the property. He made a payment of $3,000 for the 16 loads of timber," Baldwin said.

A second charge on the same property involved timber cut in 1998. When the value of the first cutting was added to timber from the second charge, for which no payment was ever made, the timber value was estimated at $80,000 Baldwin explained, "Mr. Weaver returned to the property in 1998 and, without the consent of the owner, went on the property and cut an additional 15 acres."

In addition to cutting the Mississippi woman's timber, Weaver also allegedly cut timber on acreage adjoining her property on the north side, which belongs to her sister living in Baton Rouge. "Weaver did not have permission to cut this timber and did not pay the Baton Rouge woman for the timber. However, he was not charged with this theft because the state's four-year statute of limitations had expired," Baldwin said.

Weaver was also arrested by forestry investigators in September 2000 for stealing $17,000 in timber from Natchitoches Parish and has since agreed to pay restitution to the landowner. He was again arrested in October 2000 for timber theft of $8,000 in Webster Parish and was arraigned on the charge Jan. 29.

On the most recent charges, Weaver was released Jan. 15 after posting a $20,000 bond.

Crawfish Research Center to hold Environmental Quality Incentives Program workshops

The Crawfish Research Center at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette will host two Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) workshops at the university's Model Conservation Farm near St. Martinville.

The first workshop will be held March 17 from 9 a.m. until noon. The second is scheduled for June 16 from 9 a.m. until noon. Educational exhibits can be viewed prior to the workshops from 8-9 a.m.

Dr. Jay Huner, director of the Crawfish Research Center, says the EQIP program provides cost-sharing funds for landowners and farmers to implement environmentally friendly land management practices.

"A major aim of these field days is to provide landowners and farmers with information about the Environmental Quality Incentives Program," Huner explains. "Crawfish production in small ponds will be highlighted for limited resource landowners. Three EQIP conservation practices will be demonstrated including irrigation practices, crop residue management and shallow water wildlife habitat management."

Huner adds that significant quantities of crawfish can be produced in ponds as small as one-quarter of an acre for home consumption and 1-5 acres for generating income. All crawfish ponds, including small ones, provide excellent wildlife habitats, and because crawfish ponds are drained in the spring, effluent waters can be conserved for irrigation purposes.

A jambalaya lunch is planned for each field day, so participants are asked to notify the Crawfish Research Center of their attendance.

To reserve attendance or for more information, contact Dr. Jay Huner at jhuner@louisiana.edu or (337) 394-7508.

U.S. Farm Economy is in Best Shape Ever

"The U.S. farm economy today is in the best shape it's ever been in," according to a senior official with a leading agricultural consulting organization. Speaking to members of the LSU AgCenter Leadership Development Program and LSU AgCenter faculty members, Dr. J.B. Penn said the U.S. food industry is in the midst of revolutionary breakthroughs. A senior vice president of Sparks Companies Inc., an agricultural information and consulting company, Penn is head of the company's Washington, D.C., office. Sparks is a broad-based agricultural and commodity market research, analysis and consulting company with more than food industry 425 clients from farm suppliers to restaurants.

Penn spoke of the "interconnectedness" of the U.S. food industry with the rest of the world and said the U.S. agricultural sector during the 1990s was affected by policy changes through trade bills and farm bills as well as by new technology. "Put all the trends together, and you get some major change," he said. More recently, he added, "We've had a big flip-flop from the 1990s."

From an international perspective, Penn said, "The global environment is more interconnected than it used to be. There's less ability to shelter ourselves from outside forces." Penn said growth in agricultural markets will come in developing countries "where the people are. Unfortunately, those people don't have much purchasing power." This growth, he added, will depend on an increase in the number of people who find jobs and earn enough money to change their diets. "I can't help but be optimistic on global food demand," Penn said, citing recent policy reforms that have strengthened most Southeast Asian economies.

For U.S. producers, participation in the global market will require them to compete with farmers from other countries around the world, Penn said, adding, "The low-cost provider will win in the global market." Penn said globalization has shortened the supply chain through consolidation and created a more open system with opportunities for the low-cost producer.

For U.S. agriculture, he cited vertical integration that first occurred in the poultry industry and is happening now in pork and dairy as important changes to promote international competition. "Restructuring is occurring all across the food system," he said, giving examples of Kroger becoming the first coast-to-coast food chain and WalMart emerging as the largest food retailer in terms of grocery products in the United States. The changing face of American agriculture, Penn said, came about because large commercial farms have been able to prosper through economies of scale.

Using data from the 1996 Census of Agriculture conducted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Penn divided U.S. farms into three groups - commercial farms selling $250,000 or more of products annually, transition farms with annual sales between $100,000 and $250,000 and "non-farm farms" with sales below $100,000 a year. Numbering about 157,000, commercial farms represent 72 percent of U.S. production. The 189,000 transitional farms account for 15 percent of U.S. production, and the remaining 1.6 million farms have 13 percent of annual agricultural sales. Penn said farms in the middle group must grow larger to take advantage of economies of scale and become more sophisticated marketers if they want to survive and prosper in the coming years.

On the horizon, Penn sees substantial change in American agriculture coming from a new wave of technology, including precision farming, biotechnology and e-commerce. Penn expects sophisticated management, improved technology and responsiveness to the marketplace to allow U.S. farmers to participate competitively in international markets. "We watch the pipeline," he said of his company, explaining it's beginning to focus on tangible consumer benefits, which he called second-wave products. "We'll see a lot of second-wave products in the next two to three years."

Beef Recipes

Brisket with Burgundy-Orange Sauce
1 envelope dry onion soup mix
1½ cup Burgundy wine
2 Tablespoons flour
1 Tablespoon dried basil
2 teaspoon dried thyme
1/3 cup orange marmalade
1½ teaspoon grated orange peel
*2 teaspoons sugar
4 cloves garlic, minced
½ teaspoon pepper or to taste
1 4-lb. beef brisket, trimmed of fat
1 lb. fresh mushrooms, quartered
Preheat oven to 300 degrees. In a large roaster, combine soup mix, wine, ¼ cup water and flour until blended. Stir in next 7 ingredients. Add brisket, spooning some of the sauce over the top. Cover and bake 4 hours, basting every hour, until tender when pierced with a fork. If sauce is bubbling too fast, reduce oven temperature to 275 degrees. Remove from oven, remove brisket from roaster and let rest about 20 minutes. Thinly slice against the grain. Overlap sliced meat in a shallow ovenproof dish. Add mushrooms to meat and pour sauce over all. Bake, covered with foil, 40 - 50 minutes, basting occasionally, until heated through and mushrooms are tender. Serves 8.

Grilled Steak and Vegetable Salad
*1½ lb. beef flank steak, trimmed
1 med. sweet onion, cut in wedges
*6 Creole tomatoes, cut in wedges
*4 ears cooked corn, cut in 1½" pieces
1 medium green bell pepper, sliced

Fresh Herb Vinaigrette
1/3 cup red wine vinegar
¼ cup water
4 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons sweetener
1 teaspoon dried rosemary leaves
½ teaspoon dried thyme leaves
1 teaspoon dried oregano leaves
1 teaspoon dried basil leaves
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Score steak and grill over medium-hot coals to desired degree of doneness, about 20 minutes for medium, turning halfway through. Slice steak, diagonally across grain, into ¼" slices. Combine sliced meat and vegetables in shallow serving bowl. Combine all dressing ingredients in covered jar. Shake well and pour over salad. Toss. Serve immediately or refrigerate several hours and serve chilled. Serves 6.

Beef Stroganoff
*3 lb. roast or brisket, trimmed & cubed about 1 inch
Fresh or canned mushrooms
Cooked egg noodles
16 oz. sour cream
Lipton dry soup mix:
2-3 pkgs. mushroom & onion
Brown meat in small amount of oil. Add dry soup mix, mushrooms and water. Simmer or use pressure cooker to tenderize meat. Gravy must be thin because the sour cream will loosen it. Let gravy cook before adding sour cream. The amount of sour cream depends on your taste. Serve over egg noodles.
